HORIZON THEME: Achievement

Early morning routine: passing the Student Center

Somebody's moving in or out!

Achievement is the watchword of any institution of learning. A college is distinguished by the achievements of its students, faculty, and administration, not by its size or its wealth. The expansion of York Junior College to the four-year curricula, and the increasing number of doctorates on its faculty are unmistakable characteristics of the waxing achievement of this college.

Other manifestations of achievement are more subtle, but no less important in their respective ways. A day completed, a high mark on a test, a goal scored on the athletic field—all are recognized forms of achievement.

No college is merely a "think factory." Its students must achieve individually and be prepared by the college to attain success in the future. In these pages the HORIZON staff shall deal with the achievements of all those who constitute York Junior College during the academic year of '67-68.

On Campus

The campus of York Junior College has always been a setting for educational achievement. Since 1959 seven buildings have been constructed on the new campus.

York Hall is the center for the academic endeavors of a great variety of students, including representatives of seven foreign countries—Thailand, Korea, Kuwait, The Netherlands, Canada, Greece and Hong Kong. One can always find refuge from the busy campus world by indulging in quiet study in the library. Downstairs, on tapes, one may hear scholars reciting the works of all of history's great thinkers, or browse through chronicles of years past.

The YJC campus then, provides adequate facilities for the student to learn and to achieve.

Student Achievement

Achievement is a word which applies equally to all phases of student life: athletic, scholastic, social; as much in business training as in English Composition. Achievement is all the greater for students from foreign lands, facing the challenge of a new culture. It is not necessarily a perfect grade, or a no-hitter in a baseball game. Achievement is the inner glow of pride, lit by the satisfaction of improvement; not a piece of paper or a cup of tin. Neither is achievement complacent satisfaction with a single victory. One must always pitch a faster fast-ball, comprehend more of a lecture, dance a bit more gracefully, type a little faster or learn more about a strange land. Continuing achievement is the only real success.

Faculty Achievement

Leon E. Arnold, Ruth P. Katherman, Philip L. Garrett

Retiree—Charles J. Vergin

Among the college faculty's notable achievers are those six instructors who were awarded N.D.E.A. grants by the federal government for 1967-1968.

Mr. Boyd Arnold will work toward a doctorate in Business Education at Penn State University; likewise Mr. Leon Arnold will continue his graduate work in mathematics there. Mr. Garrett will work for his master's degree in mathematics at Catholic University. Mrs. Ruth Katherman will acquire her Master of Education in psychology at Millersville State College. Mr. Murog continues his work on a doctorate at the University of Maryland. Mr. Terry will complete his doctorate credits in Latin American studies at American University.

Dr. Carlton B. Smith received his Ph.D. in June 1967 from the University of Virginia

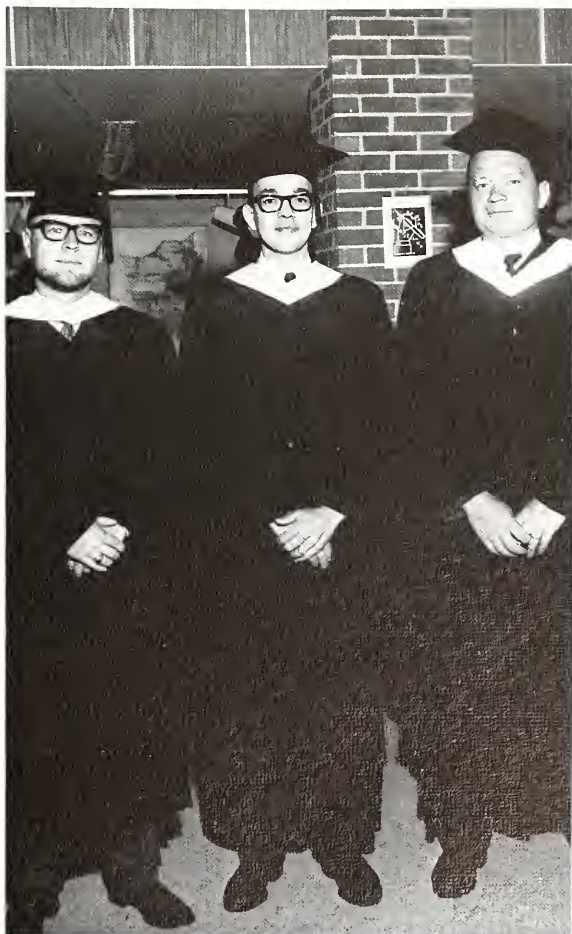

YJC's first summer music workshop

A choral workshop, the first of its kind at YJC, was organized this past summer by Mr. Ralph Woolley. Held July 10 to July 14, the workshop instruction included studies in techniques, sight reading, and composition.

The members of this workshop were church choir leaders, public school music teachers and some—just lovers of music. They came not only from York County, but also from Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and New York. The guest director was Dr. John Raymond, from Lafayette College.

It is hoped that the choral workshop, a success, will become an annual event.

Row 1: Elliott Breese, Russel G. Gohn, John C. Schmidt, Joseph R. Wilson. Row 2: W. Burg Anstine, Esq., Bruce A. Grove, M.D., Mrs. Jesse Chock. Row 3: Mrs. George E. Schenck, Raymond S. Noonan, Herman A. Gailay, M.D., Harlowe Hardinge, Benjamin M. Root, John P. Connelly, Marvin G. Sedam, John A. Waltersdorf

Master of Ceremonies: Mr. Lew Doolittle, Downtown York, Inc.

The Board of Trustees are outstanding York and York County persons who give unstintingly of their time, their financial means, and their creative thinking to build this college.

The college, in turn, orients the students to learn about York. Sunday afternoon, September 10, a panel of religious and civic leaders informed the students of the advantages of York. They were Rabbi Eli Cooper for Jewish faith; Rev. Elwood Culp, Protestant; William Ramseyer, YMCA; Edith Barber, YWCA and Back Door; Richard Shultz, York Symphony; Bert Smith, York Little Theater.

ADMINISTRATION

President Dr. Ray A. Miller

President Dr. Ray A. Miller epitomizes achievement at York Junior College. He has developed the college through nine of its most crucial years; he has labored diligently to ensure its success and growth. He will long be recognized as a man whose achievements distinguish him.

New Personnel, New Ideas

The College has reached a new level of maturation in its continuing growth as a collegiate institution. The addition of 130 resident women this year has contributed greatly to the maturity of student resident life. Also, the employment of a director of activities and a registrar is a significant index of this maturation. With these changes come a renewed interest and loyalty among students for their college. These attitudinal changes have initiated a greater desire for more student personnel services, and a more meaningful student life. All these factors augur well for the developmental future of the College and the student personnel division.

Familiar Faces

We will, in our minds, always associate certain faces with this campus. These are the faces of some of the instructors who have the responsibility of guiding our achievement, of ensuring that knowledge is always accessible, and of keeping us mentally and physically fit. Above all, these are human faces, understanding but practical, knowledgeable but aesthetic.

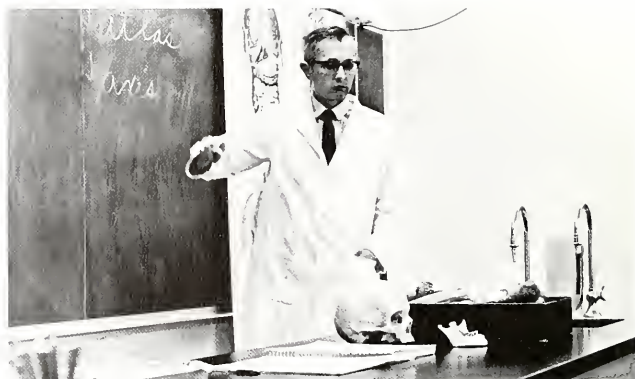

Sciences

The Quest For Answers

Exposure to prisms, chemical structure, and animal dissection were a few of the areas that students scientifically analyzed this year. Additional new laboratory equipment opened up vast possibilities of detailed research in physics.

In addition to the individual research being pursued by Sardari Khanna and the science division chairman, Dr. Carl Scheirer, Jr., the department offered seminars for the public, students, and faculty. The subjects presented were: METAGENESIS OR ALTERATION OF GENERATIONS, WOOD AS A REPLENISHABLE CHEMICAL RAW MATERIAL, DESIGN OF EXPERIMENTS—SIMULTANEOUS TESTING OF THREE VARIABLES, RAPID COMPUTER RETRIEVAL, AND OUR CAPABILITY OF FEEDING OUR GROWING POPULATION.

Behavioral Sciences

Why We Act As We Do

The behavioral sciences at YJC include psychology, sociology, anthropology and Education.

In addition to class work, psychology students view films, observe children in kindergarten and perform case studies and experiments in an attempt to understand human behavior.

Anthropology, a new course this year, joins sociology in its divisions of General Sociology, The Family, and Urban Sociology, to give students a well-rounded view of man.

Finally, through the analysis of various approaches to teaching, American Education prepares YJC students to share their knowledge.

Business Administration

Preparation For A Business-Oriented World

The Business Administration Department is one of definite, immediate, and tangible objectives—preparation of its students for employment in modern business situations. Its faculty teaches with encouragement and objectivity, knowing that talent and ability flourish under such conditions.

About one-third of YJC's students participate in the five Business curricula. The courses offered in these curricula are not highly specialized and disciplined; they are general and highly practical.

Frequent seminars and field trips this year brought students into contact with experienced professional businessmen.

Social Sciences

To Relate Man's Past To His Future

Addition of several new instructors, plus replacements for those instructors away on NDEA scholarships, brought sweeping changes to the Social Science Department this year. New ideas, new stimulation, and lots of reading assignments emphasized history from a practical and personal viewpoint. Structured book reports, visiting lecturers, and "pop" quizzes kept awareness at a high level among students and enabled them to glean new insights from their history and government courses.

Languages

Communication With One's Fellow Man

Conversational ability in one's native tongue is taken for granted in today's world, and to advance, one must often be conversant in at least one other language. With this object in mind, YJC's Language Departments seek to teach students the practical and aesthetic aspects of language.

On "Foreign Language Day," a lecture by William Turpin suggested that language study is "Necessary But Not Enough."

Every member of the English Department attended a workshop relative to the teaching of English—lecturers on Robert Frost, methods of freshman composition, and other experimental approaches.

The Physical Education department offered a diverse program throughout the year to keep YJC's students physically active and in condition. Three instructors saw to it that the College's athletic teams were adequately prepared to face their opponents. The P. E. department's recreational facilities in the gym were widely used and appreciated by students. What student has not enjoyed a few moments' diversion in watching a spirited sporting event on an otherwise dull winter afternoon? Active participation in intramurals was popular.

"Carl Sandburg" by Zoel Burickson

Through art and sculpture, one's hands and mind work together to paint a canvas or mold an object, showing individual feelings and creative interpretation. As the art student expresses his individual talent, he also masters the fundamentals of drawing, design, and oil painting.

Through music, one's voice, hands, and mind soar to express the vibrant notes of a composition, classical or modern. A YJC music student can develop his talent in two areas. If he possesses a gifted voice, he can sing in the choirs. If he is interested in studying an instrument, he can take piano lessons or play in the orchestra.

STUDENTS

A phone call home eases exam-time tension

Students are a college's raison d'etre. Their activities—curricular and extracurricular—their aspirations, and their achievements are the true keystones of a thriving college.

The Student Senate came into its own this year, providing YJC with recreation virtually every weekend, and acting as an official student voice to the Administration.

The much-anticipated pop music concerts were presented as a result of the joint efforts of Mr. Buckler and the Senate, and were immensely successful. The Senate sponsored a massive "Flying Dutchman" float in the annual York Halloween parade.

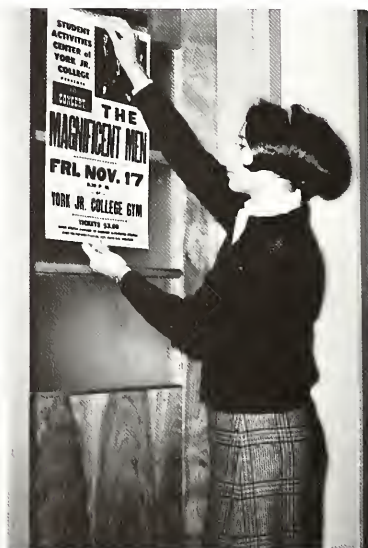

Formals were well received, with original themes and decorations providing the atmosphere. And, of course, the weekly dances in the Johnson Dining Hall were ever popular and well attended.

The MAGNIFICENT MEN, nationally famous soul musicians extraordinaire, performed at local concert.

The Mag Men appeared in the gym of the York Junior College on Friday, November 17th, as part of the Big Fall Weekend. A jam-packed crowd of 1500 students were enthusiastic in their response. The entire weekend was a financial as well as a social success according to Mr. Buckler, Director of Student Activities. We at the college felt the Mag Men did a great job here. The students were heard yelling, "Bring 'em back!" The reaction and support of the student body gave the Senate the impetus to schedule "Little Anthony and the Imperials" for March 15th.

Senator Barb Musselman opened "Mag Men" ticket sales at the Senate office.

Phi Theta Kappa, a national honorary academic fraternity, whose purpose is to foster a spirit of devotion to study and to scholarly ideals, is the junior college version of Phi Beta Kappa. Membership invitations are extended to those students who carry fifteen credits and have a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.5.

Phi Theta Kappa sponsors a tutoring service for York Junior College students who need help in various subjects. Another service of Phi Theta Kappa is sponsoring lectures by guest speakers. A lecture by Dr. Ibrahim Ellaisi on "The Arab Way of Life" was held on December 5, 1967. The tutoring service, lecture program and helping a York charity organization was continued second semester.

York Junior College's 1967 Christmas program featured a concert by the band and choir and readings of favorite Christmas literature by the Footlighters' Club. The Concert Band, directed by Arlington Kahley, presented a medley of songs on its own, in addition to accompanying the choir.

The choir's performance was distinguished by a duet by Ralph Woolley and Jane Sullivan, "Gesu Bambino," and a rendition of Simeone's modern arrangements of classic Christmas songs.

The following evening, December 14, the Footlighters, directed by Barbara Walsh, presented their interpretations of the "Literature of Christmas." The holy events of the first Christmas were portrayed in "A Child Is Born" by Benet, and readings of well-known Christmas literature were presented by speech students as well as Footlighters. Gary Smith and Lee Condran narrated.

Takwando Club

In Korea, Takwando is a religion, but here on the YJC campus it is a rapidly growing sport. Yong Chi Bai decided to teach this martial art of Korea to the students to clarify a misconception. Everyone thinks of Takwando, or Karate, as nothing more than the art of being able to break boards. This is not so. This sport instills its participants with a sense of courtesy, honor, endurance, modesty, and bravery. When engaged in battle, Takwando teaches the person to attack, not retreat; to become indefatigable and to develop a fighting spirit. This form of combat is to be used only against murder, lust, theft, lying, and intemperance. Through the teachings of the Takwando master, the participant learns wisdom, concentration, benevolence, and bravery.

Veteran's Club

Colonel Lisk watched as the Vets' float was prepared for the Veterans' Day parade through downtown York

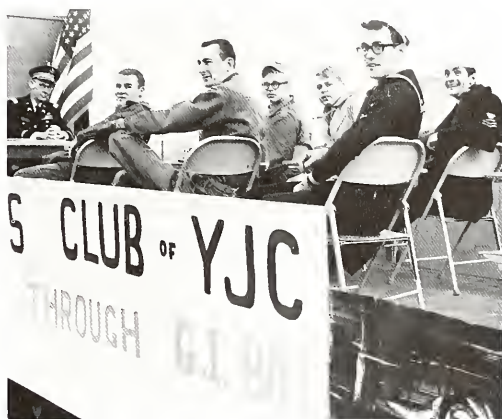

Vet's Club President, Bill Swartz, presents a flag flown over the U.S. Capitol to Dr. Ray Miller.

Since President Johnson signed the new G.I. Bill of Rights, former servicemen have infiltrated the zones of higher learning. At York Junior College, the student servicemen have organized a club, solely for veterans, to ease the transition from military to college life.

Though still in its infancy, the club already boasts 35 members from all branches of the armed forces. Many have recently returned from combat duty in the Republic of South Vietnam.

The YJC veterans wasted no time in making their debut. Dubbed "Education Under the G.I. Bill," the club entered a float in York's festive Veteran's Day Parade on November 11. Among other activities was a football game against a team from the Men's Dormitory, followed by an exciting and comical basketball encounter with the locally famed WSBA "Goodguys."

Horizon

Clacking typewriters, disappearing pictures, and used flashbulbs characterized the Horizon room this year. Deadlines came and went, accompanied by the usual mad rush. Miss McNitt, the Advisor, pulled together all the loose ends, while Editor Alan Whiteside worked with his staff in organizing the theme and content of the book. Despite delays, frustrated attempts at outside telephone calls, and scratched negatives, it must be said that the Horizon experience was rewarding and interesting for all those involved.

Literary Club

The purpose of the "Poetry Discussion Group" was to do just that—discuss poetry. At its weekly meetings over the semester, the group considered the works of modern poets from the standpoints of form and content, and in the light of the poet's backgrounds. Since many of the participants wrote their own verse, the last few discussions were devoted to poems written by group members.

Basketball: 1968 P.J.C.A.A. Champions

Ability-wise, prospects for the 1967-68 season were good, although a lack of height, as predicted by Coach Jaquet, was a decisive factor in some games. Despite the fact that many of the new players had no collegiate basketball experience, winning combinations were found that resulted in five wins out of eight games prior to the Christmas Tournament. In that event, YJC was defeated by its traditional rival Johnstown, a loss that was recouped in a regular season game second semester.

The new scholarship players, Mike Knouse and Dave Dalton, fared well. Outstanding returning players were Jeff Dietz, Ray Hoover, and team captain Carl Markel.

The high point of the season was the P.J.C.A.A. Tournament, held here on February 23-24. Beating Johnstown 60-54 on Friday, the Dutchmen went on to beat New Kensington 71-62 the following night for the Pennsylvania Junior College basketball championship. Dietz and Meyers were awarded trophies for being named to the tournament All-Star team, and Markel accepted the team trophies for the Eastern Division and State Championships.

York Junior College's wrestling team, led by Coach Bob Cummings, was confronted by a most challenging season, as can be seen by their record of six wins and two losses. Returning title holders were Gary Longnecker and team captain Fred Lehman, who still retain their State Championships at 167 and 177 pounds respectively.

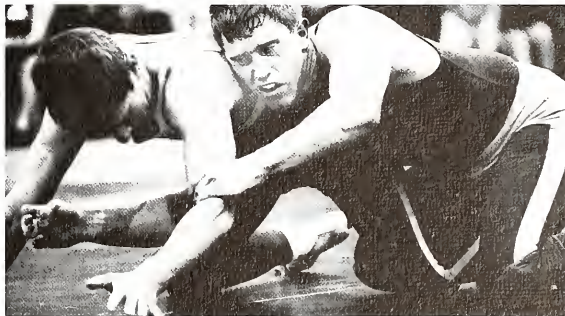

On December 28 and 29, the matmen attended a Christmas tournament at Garden City, Long Island, taking fourth place there. Fred Lehman won first place at 177 pounds; Eric Bowersox took second at 152 pounds, and Tim Hamel took fourth place in the 160-pound weight class.

This was York Junior College's second year on the cross-country circuit and it seemed that many surprises faced the team as the Dutchmen took their first victory, over Bucks C.C. The relatively inexperienced team completed their winning season with a win over F and M for a total of five wins and four losses.

For the second time, YJC entered the Region XV championship meeting of the Nation Junior College Athletic Association. With a full team entered, York placed 9th in a field of 15, compared with their 8th place in a field of 12 last year.
